THE HUNTING SEASON

While the growing scarcity of game has made hunting less attractive, yet many men travel many miles for a little sport in the woods, and the automobile makes distant hunting grounds more accessible. A good many people nowadays do not approve of hunting. They would prefer to see wild animals and birds permitted to enjoy their tree life unmolested. Still hunting is so deep rooted an instinct, inherited from so many generations of primitive ancestors, that it will be common practice for many years. If it is legitimate to kill a sheep for her luscious mutton chops, it must be equally legitimate to kill a deer or wild duck for use as a food.

Hunting takes men out of the wearisome routine of their daily life, brightening up their wits by the necessity of matching their brains against the instinct of wild life. Most men return to their work refreshed by a hunting trip, with the strength of the hills and the restfulness of the woods giving tonic to their previously weary steps.

ROOSEVELT'S PORTRAIT ON NEW GOVERNMENT SECURITY

Secretary Mellon has announced that the portrait of Theodore Roosevelt will appear for the first time on a government security on the $25 denomination of a new issue of Treasury Savings Certificates which will be placed on sale toward the end of the present calendar year.

The new issue of Treasury Savings Certificates will be a feature of the unified Government Savings Plan which is now being developed by the Secretary of the Treasury and the Postmaster General and will be announced later in greater detail. The new plan will combine to the best possible advantage the facilities of the Treasury and Postal Savings system and is designed to promote popular saving and investment in government securities.

The securities offered will have a wide popular appeal and will be placed on sale throughout the country in convenient form. It is regarded as particularly appropriate that the Roosevelt portrait should appear on a security of this character, and on the denomination which will be most available to the general public.
